

TWO VETERANS OF COUNTY ARE AMONG THE WEEK'S LIST OF THE DEAD.

John E. Pitzer of Gettysburg, and John T. Weikert of Greenmount.

John E. Pitzer, the well known Gettysburg veteran, died on Monday morning aged 77 years, 2 months and 12 days. He had not been in robust health for the past year and about three weeks ago sustained a stroke which was the cause of death. Mr. Pitzer was born on the old Pitzer farm in Cumberland township, a half mile west of the Peach Orchard, near Willoughby Run. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pitzer and, after the death of his father, continued to operate the farm for some time. During this period he traveled over this and neighboring counties conducting singing classes at the various school houses and was known in this way by very many people. He also taught instrumental music. About 36 years ago he moved to Gettysburg and for a year or more conducted the foundry. After he quit this business he established his hotel and built the large three story addition to the Chambersburg street property which he had purchased. For the past thirty-five years he had conducted this place most successfully, operating it as a temperance house and accommodating thousands of visitors every year. He knew the story of the battle well and established a reputation of telling one of the most satisfactory stories of the fight and always giving the people he guided over the field a full trip and his lively business proved very profitable to him. After the automobile became popular, he took up the vocation as guide for motor tourist parties. Mr. Pitzer was himself a veteran of the Civil War, having served a nine months' enlistment in the 165th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers. He was a member of Corporal Skelly Post No. 9, G. A. R., and a very enthusiastic Grand Army man. He was a member of St. James Lutheran Church. He was married to Hettie Walter, who died three years ago and he leaves one daughter, Mrs. P. W. Stevenson at home. He also leaves a brother, Samuel Pitzer, of Bendersville. The funeral was on Thursday and his pastor, Rev. J. B. Baker, conducted the services with interment in the Evergreen Cemetery.

Mr. Weikert was a native of this county, a son of the late George Weikert, who lived near Little Round Top along Hancock avenue. Practically all his life he engaged in farming except during his service of three years in the Civil War as a member of Co. B, 138th Pennsylvania Regiment, which was recruited from Gettysburg. He was badly wounded at the battle of Mine Run. He was a member of Corporal Skelly Post, No. 9, G. A. R. For many years Mr. Weikert gave personal attention to his farm along the Emmitsburg road, at McCurdy's school house. He was a successful farmer and several years ago purchased the H. P. Bigham property at Greenmount, where he has since lived retired. He is survived by his wife and the following children: Mrs. Charles B. Strausbaugh and Albert D. Weikert of Greenmount; Harvey W. He appeared to be in his usual health during the day and after dinner he decorated his residence for the parade which took place in Littlestown in the afternoon. He then complained of feeling ill and laid down to rest. A few minutes later he was found in an unconscious condition by his daughter, death following shortly afterwards. Mr. Bollinger had been a sufferer from heart trouble for a number of years. He was a member of Redeemer's Reformed Church of Littlestown. He was a son of the Mrs. Shane was married to Mr. Bache about ten years ago and he died in 1914. Mrs. Bache was a daughter of Theodore Pfeiffer, of New Oxford, who died in Libby Prison during the Civil War. She was a former resident of Abbottstown and New Oxford, and will be remembered by the older inhabitants. She leaves three sisters and one brother. Christ Church Now Separate Charge.

A special meeting of Gettysburg Classis was held on Monday in Redeemer's Reformed Church, Littlestown, and the Christ Church charge was reconstructed and hereafter Christ Church congregation, near Littlestown, will be constituted, a separate charge with Rev. Dr. F. S. Lindaman as pastor.

On the first of August, 1886, the Rev. Dr. F. S. Lindaman of Littlestown, became pastor of the Christ Church charge, which comprised Christ Church, St. James and St. Luke's churches. Just thirty years later Christ Church which was founded May 4, 1747, by Michael Schlotter, becomes a distinct and separate congregation.

Rev. Francis Solomon Lindaman, D.D., son of the late Jacob and Elizabeth Lindaman, was born November 10, 1845, in North Whitehall township, Lehigh county, Pa. He received his early education in the Egyptian schools, entering Kutztown Normal School, of which he graduated. He taught one year in the country schools, two years in the Kutztown schools and one year at Myerstown, now known as Albright College.

He studied theology one year under Dr. George Wolf at Myerstown. He then entered Ursinus College at Collegeville, Pa., from which place he graduated in 1872. He was licensed May, 1872, by Philadelphia Classis and was received into Zion's Classis at Littlestown in 1872. He received a call to Zion's charge, Perry county, and on June 6, 1872, was ordained and installed pastor of Zion's charge. He served this charge for 14 years and 2 months.

Receiving a call to Christ Church charge, he accepted, and entered this charge August 1, 1886.

During his ministry up to November 10, 1915, he preached 4,785 sermons, officiated at 429 weddings and 217 funerals. During his ministry at Christ Church charge he received by confirmation 945, by certificate and renewal, 293, and baptized 1,285 infants. In August, 1886, the membership of Christ Church charge was 585. It is now 883. The Sunday School numbered 215. It now has a membership of 735.

St. James and St. Luke's congregations were detached from Christ Church and with them was united St. Mark's congregation, formerly part of the Trinity charge of Gettysburg. These three congregations form a new Reformed charge to be known as the St. James' charge. The committee on supply to assist the charge in procuring a pastor are Rev. Dr. Lindaman of Littlestown, Rev. M. J. Roth and Rev. S. P. Muzger of Hanover.

Recent Wills Probated.

A number of wills have been recently probated by Register of Wills C. W. Gardner.

The will of Thos. G. Neely gave his estate to his children, two sons and two daughters. $150 was given to Sunnyside Cemetery. Chas. G. and Edward J. Neely and Dr. E. W. Cashman were named executors.

The will of Zelorus H. Cashman gave his estate to his wife for life and then to be equally divided among his children. $50 was given to the New Oxford Cemetery Association. Mrs. Cashman is the executrix.

The will of Susan Gallagher gives all her property to her two sisters, Julia Gallagher and Maria Butt, and after their death all her real and personal property to be given to the pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Baltimore, for masses for the repose of her soul. Jacob Gallagher is named as executrix.

The will of Sarah M. Rice, late of Bendersville, gives all her property to her three children, Charles C. Rice, Sylvia F. Cooley and Grace Tuckey, and D. A. Thomas of Idaville is the executor.

The will of Horace S. Neely, late of Fairfield, is very brief and gives all his real and personal property to his wife, Margaret A. Neely who is named as executrix.

The will of George H. Smith late of Littlestown leaves his property to his children in equal shares and names as executor Samuel H. Smith.

The provisions are to be noted in the two wills first named to the cemeteries where burial was made. Such a provision is one that should appeal to every one about to make a will. There is something painful about an old time cemetery for which no provision or inadequate provision for the up-keep has been made. There are a number of graveyards that are pathetic in their disorder of weeds and tombstones, which give only a message of forgetfulness and neglect. If there is no provision for the up-keep of a cemetery then there should not be placed in such places things needing care and attention. As the county progresses and farms become better kept the contrast becomes greater with unkempt graveyards nearby. It is a condition that those who make wills can help by bequests and it is a condition that should appeal to all citizens to provide for either during life or by will.

STREETS FORMERLY PIKES

CONDEMNED BY STATE TO BE REPAIRED BY STATE.

Highway Department Will Start to Repair Pike in Littlestown—Why Not Gettysburg Next?

Gettysburg's contention that Baltimore street and Chambersburg street belonged to the State and the burden of repair and rebuilding was upon the State has been recognized by the State Highway Department. This recognition has come in an indirect way but is none the less certain.

The State of Pennsylvania condemned turnpikes running from Maryland line below Littlestown to Bedford, through the counties of Adams, Franklin and Fulton. These condemned pikes passed through a number of boroughs, Littlestown, Gettysburg, Chambersburg and McConnellsburg, and the same question will likely have to be answered at each place.

Gettysburg started the ball three months ago when a committee of the Town Council visited the Highway Department and presented the situation. That the turnpike company had paid the borough an annual sum for repairs to the pike of the company, that the company had surrendered jurisdiction over Baltimore and Chambersburg streets and that by the condemnation proceedings the ownership of the pike was in the State and the burden of repair and rebuilding was upon the State. The ruling that the State could not build state aid roads in borough did not apply to pikes condemned by the State.

The answer of the officials at that time was that the legal status would be investigated and if the State was legally liable they would do their part. The investigation necessarily resulted in the Highway Department being satisfied of the legal liability of the State, for when a delegation from Littlestown visited the Highway Department last week they were assured that the Department would at once repair the turnpike through Littlestown to width of 16 feet. The Littlestown delegation was headed by State Representative Calvin D. Rudisill. Others present were Chas. E. Dutta, Burgess of Littlestown; George S. Kump, president of the borough council, and Charles H. Basehoar, Israel Crouse, John R. Byers and J. Augustus Smith, members of council.

It is expected that work will begin on the turnpike in Littlestown at a very early date.

The president of the Chambersburg town council in reply to criticism for not keeping in repairs the pike through that place condemned by the State made the declaration last week that the liability of the State has been admitted by the Highway Department officials to representatives of that borough, and has offered the excuse that the Department has no money available for the purpose of keeping the parts of the condemned turnpikes within the borough limits in repair.

Gettysburg should act in accordance with this condition of affairs. The Town Council should insist upon the Highway Department making repairs to Buford avenue this year and every influence should be brought to have Baltimore and Chambersburg streets rebuilt from appropriations that will be provided for 1917. Under a recent act the Department could ask the borough to help in such rebuilding and the town is ready with such help as provided in a bond issue passed by the council sometime ago when it was thought the Department would go ahead.

If the Town Fathers could come to some terms with the Battlefield Commissioners for the building by the latter of Middle street, as the Commission proposed several years ago it would be advisable to do so. With part of our streets so provided for, the town could then decide how the remainder of streets could be permanently rebuilt.

Developing Orrtanna.

Charter is being asked for the Orrtanna State Bank by Theo. Kharas, A. H. Kready, L. F. Nickley, Geo. A. Herring and Chas. W. Dieschecker, with a capital stock of $25,000 divided into 500 shares of $50 each. It is planned for the bank to sell the shares at $60, the extra $10 to be used for the expenses of organization, erection of a banking house and any balance to go into a surplus. It is proposed to limit the individual subscription as much as possible so as to secure as many stockholders as possible.

Orrtanna is believed to be a good banking point because of its steady growth and because of the many apple orchards located in the country round about that are coming into bearing. One of the Musselman canning factories was located there several years ago and has been doing a large and thriving business.

Dr. Kharas who is promoting the development, is head of the Industrial Securities Company of Harrisburg and application is being made at the same time for a charter for the Orrtanna Garment Factory, for the purpose of manufacturing and selling shirts, shirt waists, overalls, garments and wearing apparel of every kind. The factory will have a capital stock of $15,000, $5,000 of which is to be 7 per cent. preferred. Orrtanna is asked to furnish $3,000 of this stock. It is believed that the slack season of the canning company will give its employees opportunity for work in the garment factory.

This development suggests that Orrtanna is fast approaching a position where its progressive development will be better carried forward by being a borough, rather than as part of a township. Aspers is in the same boat and it is going to be a race which of these two communities will be the next borough in the county.

The legal preliminaries it is said will not permit the bank to be opened until about November.

W. C. T. U. Medal Contests.

Adams county will hold the annual W. C. T. U. Convention at New Oxford, Thursday, August 31st, morning, afternoon and evening. Plans have been made to hold a Grand Gold Medal Contest at the evening session in the Lutheran Church. All delegates and visitors bring box luncheon for noon and afternoon meals.

The Gold Medal Contest is held for the purpose, among others, to select the winner to be sent to the diamond contest at the State Convention in October. Only those who have won gold medals can take part in the New Oxford contest. The four holding gold medals are Pauline Lestz Gettysburg, Agnes Adams Bendersville, Mary Floto, Biglerville; and Luella Rock, Fairfield. It is expected to hold other contests prior to the New Oxford contest and others may become eligible to take part in that contest.

A Matrons' Silver Medal Contest will be held in the Presbyterian Church at Hunterstown next Sunday evening, July 30, at 7:30 o'clock. The contest will be held under the auspices of St. Courageous W. C. T. U. of Gettysburg. The public is cordially invited.

Suits Some; Death to Others.

And yet the fish that swallowed the iron a little later was quite carried away with it.

STORY OF A LAWSUIT.

Queer Way in Which an Umbrella Case Was Decided in Poland.

The Central Law Journal says that the old fable of the lawyers and the oyster, in which the ownership of an oyster being contested, the lawyers ate the oyster and gave a shell to each of the litigants, is matched by a story of a lawsuit which a Russian journal relates as entirely authentic.

In a city of Poland, it appears, two men came into court with a suit over the ownership of an umbrella which had been left in a restaurant. Each one introduced evidence to prove that the umbrella was his. Being unable to match the wisdom of Solomon by dividing the umbrella between them, the judge postponed the case. Pending its decision the umbrella was left in the judge's private room.

Later, as he left the court to go home, the judge found that the weather was rainy. He went back to his room, took the umbrella which was in litigation and spread it over his head in the street. On his way home he went into a restaurant and left the umbrella on the rack, and when he was ready to leave the place he found that it had been taken away by some unknown customer. Then he bought another umbrella and took it to his courtroom.

When the case came up the litigants were confronted with it, and neither was able to identify it as his own. The court thereupon fined them both for invoking the law on a frivolous pretext, and they departed empty handed and decidedly "unsuited."

THE IDEAL CITY.

A Vision of What May Perhaps Come to Pass in the Future.

A city, sanitary, convenient, substantial; where the houses of the rich and the poor are alike comfortable and beautiful; where the streets are clean, and the sky line is clear as country air; where the architectural excellence of its buildings adds beauty and dignity to its streets; where parks and playgrounds are within the reach of every child; where living is pleasant, toil honorable and recreation plentiful; where capital is respected, but not worshipped; where commerce in goods is great, but not greater than the interchange of ideas; where industry thrives and brings prosperity alike to employer and employed; where education and art have a place in every home; where worth and not wealth give standing to men; where the power of character lifts men to leadership; where interest in public affairs is a test of citizenship and devotion to the public well is a badge of honor; where government is always honest and efficient and the principles of democracy and their fullest and truest expression; where the people of all the earth can come and be blended into one community life and where each generation will pass on to the next a city greater, better and more beautiful than the last.—Mare Feiler, Secretary of the Civic League of Cleveland, O., in New York Independent.

An Ancient Idea of the North Pole. The north pole is the place of greatest dignity in the world, and the people who dwell near it "have a wonderful faculty of excellence and an exceeding prerogative above all nations of the earth." How blessed we may think this nation to be, for they are in perpetual light and never know what darkness means, by the benefit of twilight and full moons, as the learned in astronomy do very well know, which people, if they have the notice of their eternity by the comfortable light of the gospel, then are they blessed and of all nations most blessed. Why then do we neglect the search of this excellent discovery against which there can be no notice said to hinder the same?—"Hakluyt's Voyage" (Sixteenth Century).

Got His Reply.

A funny man indulged in a practical joke recently. He put an advertisement in a paper for a wife and requested each candidate to inclose her carte de visite. It was a foolish thing to do, but one of the candidates served him out very well by sending the following letter: "Sir, I do not inclose my carte, for, though there is some authority for putting a card before a horse, I know of none for putting one before an ass."

Fast Fliers.

The great German naturalist Gaetke relates that with the aid of a telescope in his observation of migrating birds he had seen the plover and curlew, not fast flying birds as we know them, travel four miles per minute, 240 miles per hour, in the attenuated air of high altitudes.

The Name Cuba.

Cuba is the name by which the island was originally known to the Lucayan Indians, who were with Columbus when he discovered it. One of its villages or cities was called by them Cubanacan, and it is reported that from the similarity of sounds Columbus, still supposing himself to be on the coast of Asia, imagined that this must be a city of Kublai Khan, the Tartar sovereign celebrated by Marco Polo. The survival of the original name for Cuba is a remarkable instance of persistence, as the island has been baptized and rebaptized many times since its European discovery. Columbus first called it Juana in honor of Prince John, the son of Ferdinand and Isabella. After Ferdinand's death it was called in his memory Fernandina. Subsequently this name was changed to Santiago, after St. James, the patron saint of Spain. Still later it was named Ave Maria in honor of the Virgin Mary. But none of these names held, and the Indian name is still preserved.

The Social Scale.

Any one having acute information as to what the social scale is will kindly communicate with this office instantly. Although a favorite expression in the best of authors' families, diligent research fails to reveal its true character. Its limitations, denotations and connotations. The dictionary is very pains taking in telling us what scales are—not only scales in general, but numerous varieties of scales in particular. It is similarly minute in defining the word social, but there is never a hint as to what the social scale is. How is it established? It must measure something in connection with society. But what is its unit of measurement? Is it dollars per stratum, ancestors per century, shirt sleeves per generation, idleness per family or what? Without these and other accurate details we must all remain at sea. Many of us at this very moment may think we are ascending the social scale when we are really traveling rapidly in the other direction.—Life.

A Fine Talker.

"I like the looks of this parrot," said the lady who had stepped into the bird store. "Is he a good talker?" The proprietor replied that the bird was an excellent talker, and it was evident the customer was favorably impressed.

"What is your price for him?" she asked.

The man had noticed the rich apparel worn by his customer, and he judged that there was a chance to make a little "easy money" at the expense of one who would never miss it. "Ten dollars," he said, with just the slightest possible hesitation.

"Five dollars, madam," instantly croaked the parrot.

The lady looked at the proprietor, who had turned red.

"He certainly is a fine talker," she said, "and he also seems to have good sense. I am willing to take him at his own valuation. Do I get him for that?" "You do," answered the bird man sadly.

Ancient Corfu.

The island of Corfu claims a maritime history antedating that of Athens. According to tradition, this was the land of the Phaeacians, and here Ulysses landed in the course of his wanderings, and on this sea shore that delightful story had its setting, which Homer tells, of how the hero received much needed hospitality and kindness at the hands of Nausicaa, the daughter of King Alcinoos—perhaps the most beautiful episode in all the "Odyssey." Indeed to this day two islands close to the shores of Corfu dispute the honor of being the ship of Ulysses turned into stone.

Electrical Oscillations.

Hertz years ago first produced rapid electrical oscillations and showed that they traveled through space with the speed of light and reappeared as electrical oscillations and sparks in suitably arranged conductors at a distance. Starting with waves twenty feet long in air and oscillating 50,000 times a second, he worked down to waves one-tenth as long and ten times as rapid.

She Told Him.

Diligently a chronic procrastinator, "I dreamed last night that I—er—ah—proposed to you. I wonder what that is a sign of? Miss Lingerlong (desperately)—It is a sign that you have got more sense when you are asleep than when you are awake.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Wigs.

The fashion of wearing wigs was due to a skin disease which produced bald patches on the august head of Francis I. of France. He got a wig, and his courtiers followed suit, just as they all whispered when he had an attack of laryngitis.

Comedy of Errors as to Fires.

The Fire Marshal of Wisconsin has issued a bulletin which he terms a "Comedy of Errors." It is well worth repeating and every subject remembered has something to be avoided in the interest of the prevention of fire.

He looked for a gas leak with a match, and found it.

He lighted a match to see if his gasoline tank was empty. It was not.

He smoked while filling his auto tank, but will do so no more.

He smoked in the hay mow, but will not do so again.

He smoked in bed, so did the bed clothes.

He threw matches into the waste paper basket. He is wiser now.

He threw a cigarette stub into some rubbish.

He used a wooden box filled with sawdust as a cuspidor.

He saved his oily waste and oily rags and they burned the shop.

He washed his hands in gasoline near the stove. The doctor washes them now.

He allowed dangerous conditions to remain because "he never had a fire." He does not longer boast of that record.

He did not worry about fire, as he had "plenty of insurance," and forgot the safety of his wife and children.

He used a torch to thaw out frozen water pipes and set the house on fire.

He stuffed up the chimney holes with paper and rags.

She cleaned her gloves with gasoline and saved fifteen cents, but paid the doctor and druggist fifteen dollars.

She poured kerosene into the lamp while the wick was burning.

She poured kerosene on a sluggish fire, but will do so no more.

She put gasoline into the wash boiler on the stove to make washing easier.

She dried the clothes too near the stove.

She used the wrong oil can.

She used gasoline to exterminate bed bugs. They are all exterminated.

She burned sulphur all over the house to fumigate.

She used the woodbox back of the range as a waste paper receptacle.

She gave matches to her children to go out and burn leaves in the yard. The cotton dresses burn easier than leaves.

She looked for a dress in the clothes closet with a candle.

She was "coming right back," so she left the electric current on in her iron.

She swung the gas bracket too close to the curtains.

She fixed up a fine tissue paper shade for the lamp.

She filled the tank of her gasoline stove while one burner was on.

The comedies have turned out to tragedies; many of the scenes of action are in ashes and too many of the actors are maimed or asleep; others will follow, no doubt, as they are prone to ignore the advice and experience of others instead of profiting by the errors and sufferings.

Attractive Driveways Catch Buyers.

Many owners of farms are finding it wise to make their entrances attractive. It influences the prospective purchaser as much as a clean, neat person does. In "Farm and Fireside," a writer discusses driveways and gates. He says:

"Another consideration is the city buyer. My farm lane and gateway will cost me about $200, the owner of a small farm remarked the other day, but I am expecting to make it a profitable investment nevertheless." He already had built two massive stone gate posts, setting the base of the posts in the ground. The stones were from the foundation of an old house lately moved, and required only a small amount of preparation.

He showed me how he was going to line the driveway with an evergreen hedge. A cement sidewalk was to be laid beside it, and the roadway graded.

"It is all work I can easily do in my spare time," he explained, "and this is why I am going to all the trouble. In the first place it will make the farm attractive as long as I live here, and we shall all enjoy it. But here we are only about a mile from the present city limits and some man will be looking for just such a place as this."

"He will be glad to pay extra for property which is as attractive and which has a prosperous-looking approach. If I set out shrubbery and a small hedge now, it will be well established by the time I am ready to sell, and will save the purchaser several years of waiting."

Trying to Aid Poland.

President Wilson is trying to make arrangements for the getting of food supplies from the United States to the starving people of Poland. At the White House the other day the following statements of the President's efforts was given out.

"The President has sent personal letters to the King of England, the Emperor of Germany, the Czar of Russia, the Emperor of Austria and the President of France, suggesting the taking up entirely afresh of the matter of the relief of the overwhelming suffering in Poland and tendering the friendly offices of this government in negotiations as to the possibility and method of such relief, any plan proposed to be of such character as to be adapted to the accomplishment of no other result than that of the relief of the distressed inhabitants of Poland."

The President sent the letters at the earnest solicitation of natives of Poland living in this country, who have told him that conditions in Poland are beyond description, that men, women and children are starving and that all efforts to extend relief have failed.

No July 4th Tetanus Victims in Pa. Ever since the establishment of the State Health Department there has never been a year that many cases of death from tetanus or lockjaw have not been reported as a result of wounds or burns from explosives on the Fourth of July.

As the State Health Department began to distribute antitoxin throughout the State, and it became known that this preventive of lockjaw could be obtained free, its use became frequent and the dread terror was warded off gradually, until this year not a single case of lockjaw has been reported to the department, and not a death has occurred from that dread disease born of burns or wounds on July 4th. This is unprecedented in the health annals of any State in the Union, and is a remarkable illustration of the value of preparedness. However, this condition may not all be attributed to the fact that antitoxin stations are handy in every county in the State, but partly to the fact that there has been a disposition to observe the Fourth of July in a safe and sane manner and to eliminate explosives as a means of an exhibition of patriotic ardor.

State Health Commissioner Dixon is much gratified over the results of the departmental watchfulness all over the State, and said that the people are being educated to the idea that there is always some way of preventing disease through the Department if called upon in time.

Who Wrote This Verse?

In the August "Woman's Home Companion" is printed an amusing poem which bears the ear marks of old age. Its authorship is in doubt. The poem in part is as follows:

"A thin little fellow had such a fat wife.

Fat wife, fat wife, God bless her!

She looked like a drum and he looked like a fife.

And it took all his money to dress her.

God bless her!

To dress her!

God bless her!

To dress her!

"She grew like a target, he grew like a sword.

A sword, a sword, God spare her!

She took all the bed and she took all the board.

And it took a whole sofa to bear her.

God spare her!

To bear her!

God spare her!

To bear her!

"She spread like a turtle, he shrank like a pike.

A pike, a pike, God save him!

And nobody ever beheld the like.

America's Prosperity.

The foreign catclysm, now entering upon its third year, finds the United States at the high tide of prosperity. While Europe's powers continue their expenditures of blood and treasure in incalculable volume, financial experts point out that the wealth of this country is piling up so generally and on such solid foundation as to remove all apprehension of inflation.

Bank clearings, bountiful crops, earnings of the railroads and industrial companies, the enormous output of steel and iron, a foreign trade balance for the fiscal year of $2,136,000,000—these and countless other signs point to the unparalleled prestige of the only leading nation of the world not at war.

The course of events in this country after peace shall have been declared continues to engage the attention of economists. In the small minority are those who declare that the end of the conflict will be followed by a tremendous inflow of foreign products, to the great detriment of home industries. Others profess to believe that Europe's peace or reconstruction demands will more than neutralize the aggregate of her offerings to our markets.

Are You Prepared for Fire?

If a fire should break out in your home, would you and the children become panic-stricken, or have you taught yourself and them what to do? The Fire Chief of Washington, D. C., says that more than half of the fires which occur are the result of carelessness and ignorance of women and could soon have been controlled had the women only been sensible and self-contained. If you live in a small town or in an isolated house in the country it is more vital that you be prepared for fire emergencies than if you dwell in the city, where a fire engine could reach you in a few moments. Fire loss affects the community as well as the individual and through increased insurance rates it adds materially to the cost of living.—Mary Hamilton Talbott in "The Countryside Magazine" for August.

All good qualities of Ely's Cream Balm, sold, are found in Liquid Cream Balm, which is intended for use in atomizers. That it is a wonderful remedy for Nasal Catarrh is proved by an ever-increasing mass of testimony. It does not dry out nor rasp the tender air-passages. It allays the inflammation and goes straight to the root of the disease. Obsolete old cases have yielded in a few weeks. All druggists 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

After an inspection of the herd of cattle belonging to H. D. Sheppard of Hanover on his farm in Union township, about eighty per cent of them were found to be infected with tuberculosis. Wesley Fuhrman is the tenant on the farm. A number of the cattle on the Charles Miller farm near Green Ridge are also said to have the disease. It is likely that the condemned cattle will be killed.

THE AUGUST MAGAZINES

SOMETHING OF THE KEYSTONE STATE AND THE PEOPLE.

How the Farmer Can Make His Property Attractive and Valuable.

Agnes Repplier, writing about Pennsylvania in the August "American Magazine," says:

"The sensitive Pennsylvanian, pelted from every side by neighbors whose lives are not without reproach may be pardoned for looking back a bit wistfully upon the heroic days when his State was the birthplace of the nation. He turns from the preposterous Capitol at Harrisburg, with its fourteen-hundred-dollar tables, and its sixteen-hundred-dollar bootblackening stand, with its chairs that cost more than thrones, and its umbrella tubs that cost more than Roman baths, with its imperial hatracks and its vice-regal spittoons, to contemplate the austere and simple beauty of Independence Hall, built for gentlemen and patriots."

"In one respect only, Pennsylvania is unchanged and unchangeable. Men have dealt harshly and shamefully by her, but nature has crowned her with beauty. Her founder, knowing nothing of his broad tracts save that they were forest lands, gave to the new province the pretty name of 'Sylvania'; and Charles the Second, always a past master of words, prefixed the Penn., for which pleasant conceit every son and daughter of the State owes him a grateful thought. Thus the word Pennsylvania perpetuates history, honors a noble name, and symbolizes the loveliness of the land; a land of woods and waters, hills and valleys, fat farms and rocky solitudes. The shrieking engine that drags its trainload of passengers through the valley of the Juniata, across ridge after ridge of the Allegheny Mountains, past the Tuscarora Gap, and the succession of 'Narrows,'—'Long Narrows,' 'Jack's Narrows,' 'Packsaddle Narrows,' has traversed a country so widely and nobly beautiful that, in Europe, it would attract the tourists of the world."

Starting Poultry Raising.

Many requests from all sections of the State reach the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for advice in raising poultry and from time to time the expert poultry men of the Department are called upon for their assistance. J. T. Campbell, one of the poultrymen in speaking of starting in the poultry business says:

"If I were starting in poultry work I would make hardness and strong vitality the leading consideration. Vigor is the cornerstone of permanent success. If you have strong, vigorous stock, treat them properly, and breed for vigor first and foremost, you will have freedom from disease and small loss from young chicks dying, which within a few years will amount to far more net profit than to follow the fool ideas which are popular. You may not get quite so many eggs from a few individual hens, and not break any records, but what doth it profit a man if he have one hen that lays 400 eggs and a flock of weakly unprofitable stock that gives a loss of sixty per cent. of the chicks in raising."

"If you want to succeed in poultry work and build on a solid basis it will be well to grow into it gradually. It is an entirely different proposition to take care of a thousand fowls than to care for a hundred. The little things you do for the hundred will be practically impossible with a thousand, and if you attempt to bestow the same amount of time and care on a thousand that you put in on a hundred, the labor will consume all possible profits."

The best thing to do is to start with some good, strong, vigorous breeding fowls, say a pen of fifty. If you buy these in September or October you will get them cheaply as breeders sell a lot of good stock cheap at this time. From this pen you can raise what pullets you can handle and learn something of the care of larger numbers during the first year. The next year you can make a further increase, gradually growing into the business as you learn to handle the fowls successfully."

"I think the big records made by the English stock can be accounted for by selection of individuals for the contests and to change of climate. I know of no American bred English stock making any better returns than our American."

"Pullets which have laid during the winter are likely to produce weakly chicks. I would rather have for breeders good vigorous hens that have not been pampered, but have had to kind of rough it through the winter with plenty of good feed, than pullets or heavy laying hens."

"A sixty by sixty foot house will accommodate a thousand hens if properly constructed, but you are likely to succeed far better with several smaller buildings. Five acres of land will be enough for a thousand mature hens. However, you will need range and clean land on which to rear your young stock from year to year if you are to succeed in keeping up vitality and preventing heavy mortality."

Ideas Best Business Assets.

In the August "American Magazine" a prominent business man describes the way in which originality and radical ideas won him a salary of $6000 and promotion to corporation president after starting as handy boy in a bank. He says:

"From my first job as handy boy about a bank in my home town at a wage of fifteen dollars a month, up to my present position as president of a corporation at sixty thousand dollars a year, there is a trail so clear that to-day I can almost check off every step in it. For every step is an idea."

"The revelation came to me—when I was still young enough to build on revelations—that ideas are the most valuable possessions in the business world. I have never had occasion to change my mind. Where my associates have saved money I have saved ideas; where they have invested money I have invested ideas. And my rewards have always been greater than my expectations."

"I was business adviser to dozens of large firms. Some of them were swinging more business than their capital permitted, and consequently were riding for a fall. Half a dozen of my customers were trying to do more business than their brain capacity allowed. Some men can run a fifty-thousand-dollar corporation successfully, but will leave only crashes and ashes in their wake when they attempt to direct a two-hundred-thousand-dollar concern, just as some women might run a side street boarding house, but would fail utterly with a large hotel. I made a serious study of the business problems of every big concern with which I came in contact. I devised means of raising capital, extending credit, and keeping the proper balances between liquid assets, plants, merchandise, and so on."

"After I had spent four strenuous years with this trust company, a Chicago leader of finance invited me to call on him. During those four years I had raised my institution's deposits from $2,780,000 to $5,300,000. The number of depositors had grown from 3,324 to over 8,000."

"So I went to call on the multi-millionaire."

"I have never known why a board of bank directors offered me that morning a vice-presidency of a prominent Chicago bank at $10,000 salary. Why did they single me out? I put this question to a railroad official last night when we were discussing success. His road, he said, employed detectives to travel their lines hunting men worthy of promotion. Perhaps the captains of capital have their scouts out scanning the field for promising material. Who knows?"

President to Occupy Shadow Lawn.

As soon as Congress adjourns President Wilson will go to Long Branch, N. J., and make the palatial residence known as "Shadow Lawn" the summer capital and receive formal notification of his nomination there. His campaign it is expected will be directed from the same place, being a short distance from New York.

President Wilson's sojourn in this heretofore unlucky mansion should be lucky if his lucky number is still working, for this is the thirteenth year since the magnificent place built by the late John A. McCall of the New York Life Insurance Company, in 1903, was opened.

Only misfortune followed the three persons who have previously lived here.

McCall, who spared no expense and who is credited with having spent a million dollars on "Shadow Lawn" and its sixty-five acres of ground, beautified with over fifty thousand dollars worth of shrubbery and trees, and containing an artificial lake and a fifty thousand dollar stable and garage, spent only one season in the big white building on the hill before troubles came thick upon him.

Joseph White, the Texas postage stamp millionaire, who founded his fortune on a bid for bonds in the second Cleveland administration, made it his home for several years before his financial collapse.

J. B. Grenhut, the New York merchant prince, who next purchased it, last year became bankrupt. But the superstitious say the rule of three having been followed to the end, the hoodoo now is broken. Besides "13" is President Wilson's lucky number, he says.

The hopes of Long Branch and its wealthy summer colony have long centered in the place being the Summer White House. It has been regarded as almost too pretentious and dignified for a mere private residence.

"Shadow Lawn" to-day is a Mecca for motorists, and is visited by hundreds of sight-seers daily. From the upper stories may be seen the summer homes of Presidents Grant and Garfield on the ocean, less than a mile away. An idea of the size of the building may be gained from the fact that twenty-five telephones have been installed for the convenience of the President's household.

Maryland State Grange Fair.

The Maryland State Grange Fair will be held in Ohler's Grove, near Taneytown, on August 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19, 1916, under the auspices of the Taneytown Grange, the only Agricultural Fair held in Carroll county.

The program promises to be an interesting one, and the fair itself fully up to its usual standard of exhibits and attractions.

Tuesday, August 15, will be Boy Scout Day and the day of athletic contests. There will be twelve numbers by the scouts, each having its own peculiar interest. Music by Boy Scout Band and addresses by those interested in the movement.

Wednesday, August 16, is Knights of Pythias Day, beginning at 10.30 a. m. with a parade in Taneytown. Prizes will be awarded for best drilled uniformed rank; for lodge having most men in line; for lodge having best band in parade. The day will be filled with addresses and music.

Thursday, August 17, will be Grange Day. Prominent speakers from M. A. C. will be present. A grand concert and readings will be given by Jenny Lind Green of Baltimore, assisted by a large chorus of trained voices. The program of this day promises to be a very fine one.

Friday, August 18, will be Republican Day. Dr. Joseph I. France, candidate for U. S. Senator, and William H. Lawrence, candidate for Congress, and others, will deliver addresses at 1.00 p. m. There will also be athletic contests on this day; running and jumping, etc.

Saturday, August 19, will be Democratic Day. Hon. David J. Lewis, candidate for U. S. Senate; Hon. J. E. C. Talbot, candidate for Congress; H. Dorsey Etchison and Andrew R. Broedbeck, candidates for Congress in adjoining districts, will address the meeting.

Special free attractions will be Miss Irene Latour and her trained dogs; and the six famous Flying Herberts. Both companies will give daring and remarkable feats entirely free to all in the grounds at the time.

A special public sale of horses, cattle and sheep will take place on Friday. This is a new feature and should be interesting to many.

There will be special train service on Thursday, which will enable visitors along the V. M. R. R. to spend the day at the fair and return by train.

For premium lists and a general description of the attractions, a large program has been prepared which gives full information, copies of which may be had from Chas. E. H. Shriner, Secretary.

Advertising America.

"See America first" has become a national slogan. Uncle Sam himself is just beginning to wake up to the advantages of advertising his National playgrounds. In the August issue of "Outing" in "Advertising America" William Harper Dean tells how Uncle Sam is telling his people about their National Parks in language they can understand.

Mr. Dean draws a comparison between the old method used by the Department of the Interior and the new way. Incidentally the photographs used to illustrate this article are wonderful. Now that Europe is temporarily closed for repairs, "Advertising America" will do much toward helping us know America.

Dresden China.

It is to Frederick Bottger, a native of Saxony—1682-1719—that we owe the secret of making china or porcelain. It was in 1710 that a lucky accident revealed to Bottger the true nature of the required paste. Having noticed the unusual weight of some hair powder, he inquired what it was made of and found that it was a finely powdered clay from Aue. He forthwith procured some of the clay, made vessels of it and, to his infinite delight, learned that he had at last found the very material he wanted. In a word, he had made the discovery of porcelain.

Mrs. Grace—One does not like to be ignored. I wore a brand new gown at the reception last night, and I don't believe a soul noticed me. Mrs. Gray—There's where you made a mistake. Now, I wore my old black silk that has been turned twice, and everybody saw me fast enough.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Keep the Feet Dry.

Dr. Alvah H. Doty, formerly health officer of the port of New York, contributes some sound, common sense advice to the Medical Record on how not to catch cold. It is low resisting power, he says, that allows us to contract such infectious diseases as colds and grip, and those who escape such troubles are those whose organs are healthy and strong enough to resist the attacks of the germs that produce them.

"Nothing," writes Dr. Doty, "contributes more directly to predisposition to acute inflammatory conditions of the respiratory tract than wet feet. Nine-tenths of the footgear worn by women offers no protection whatever against damp or wet streets. . . . Even the heavier shoes worn by men offer but a little more protection. Besides, so called waterproof shoes exist chiefly in the imagination." Dr. Doty insists that rubbers should always be worn in wet weather and says they will not draw or sweat the feet if removed immediately upon entering the house.

ANSWER THE ALARM.

Gettysburg People Should Not Delay.

If your kidneys are inflamed. Don't stand around and do nothing. Like a fire it will soon be beyond control. You will get the alarm in time—Backache, or dizziness or disorders of the urine.

Heed the warning. Give your kidneys a rest by living more carefully.

Use Doan's Kidney Pills to help stamp out the cause.

Profit by a Gettysburgian's experience.

Mrs. D. F. Arendt, Railroad St., Gettysburg, says: "I was suffering from backache and dizzy headaches. My kidneys were much too frequent in action. This disturbed my rest at night and made me feel all worn-out the next day. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the People's Drug Store, gave me relief at once. I always keep them on hand in case of need."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arendt had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

LET IN THE LIGHT.

Faded Carpets Are Not as Pitiful as Faded Cheeks.

Fresh air enthusiasts are familiar enough to most of us, but we hear less of enthusiasm for light. Darkened parlors, darkened bedrooms, darkened sickrooms are too common.

Sir B. W. Richardson, the eminent London scientist and physician, declared that when the professors of healing enter a sickroom to their work in most cases ought to be Goethe's dying exclamation, "More light, more light!"

The light of the sun is God's own microbe killer, germicide, disinfectant, prophylactic, sickness healer. There is no physician, no chemical antidote, no compounded prescription to be compared with sunlight. Without it nature could not perform her functions. Man, beast, bird, insect would fall victims to the deadly gases that would prevail. The horrid mists and deadly gases are dispersed and decomposed by the action of light.

Let it in, everywhere! Let the light in more and more abundantly. Faded carpets are not as pitiful as faded cheeks. Spoiled cushions are trivial compared with spoiled health. Darkened rooms are too suggestive of darkened lives.—Christian Herald.

TIRES OF A MOTORCAR.

Why They Are Found Heated After a Long and Fast Run.

It is well known that after a long and fast run the tires of an automobile are found to be very hot, and many have supposed this is the result of the friction of the tire on the road. The Scientific American says that such is not the case, at least as to the greater portion of the heat.

"The real cause of heating," says that magazine, "is the internal friction of the tire itself, for as the tire is being constantly deflected by contact with the road the various plies, or layers, which compose the tire do not act uniformly, and consequently there is more or less motion between them that results in friction and heat. The greater the change in shape in the tire as it contacts with the road the greater will be the friction."

"Of course the harder the tire is pumped the less will be the friction, but it is evident that, while a perfectly rigid tire would generate but little heat, it would fail in giving easy riding. So we must put up with some heating and consequent wear of the tire. The subject is one that is being successfully studied by the tiremaker."

Hanged the Clever Forger.

Of curious petitions against the death penalty being enforced one recalls the eighteenth century case of William Lyland, who was sentenced for forging a bill for £7,114 on the East India House. The forgery was a work of art. No less than thirty signatures were imitated, and at the trial not one of the victims could swear that the signature was not his own. However, with the help of the paper manufacturers Lyland's guilt was brought home. Then came the petition of his friends. So clever a man ought never to be hanged, they pleaded. His craftsmanship should save him. It gained him a respite. He was allowed to finish a fine engraving he had begun, but nothing more. Though the engraver was a favorite of George III., that king quite failed to see how a forgery could be excused on the ground that it was a clever forgery.—Fall Mall Gazette.

Don't Talk Too Much.

Recently a valuable salesman was trying to close a deal with a good customer. The salesman was doing all the talking, and the buyer was becoming not a little annoyed. Several times the customer started to speak, but the salesman would choke him off and start on another line of argument. Finally the manager saw what was up and suggested to the seller that he allow the buyer to say something. This the buyer did and quickly. He said that he had been trying for half an hour to tell the salesman that he would take the goods. —Farm Machinery.

His Gilded Promises.

"Why did you break off the match? Didn't you love the girl?" "Yes, I loved her, but I saw that our married life would not be happy. It was better to part in time, was it not?" "I suppose so. But how do you know that your married life would not have been happy?"

"Well, I had promised her a grand piano and an automobile. In fact, I had made her more promises than I could keep."—Pittsburgh Post.

Squaring Herself.

He—But I asked you, dearest, to keep our engagement a secret for the present. She—I couldn't help it. That hateful Miss Olden said the reason I wasn't married was because no fool had proposed to me, so I up and told her you had.—Detroit Journal.

Outrageous.

"I wouldn't mind paying a tax on my income if I had one," said the poet. "but I do object to paying a tax on my hopes. That's what it amounts to when I pay postage on the manuscripts I send out to editors."—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

AKENDTSVILLE.

On Wednesday the 9th inst., the two Sunday Schools of this place will hold their annual picnic in Heiges' Grove at the Conewago bridge.

During the heavy thunder storm last Thursday evening lightning struck David Orner's house near Brysonia and knocked considerable of the plastering off of two rooms and broke nearly all the dishes in the kitchen cupboard, and Mr. and Mrs. Orner were considerably stunned.

Messrs. David Lawver and Reuben Roth each report an extra good turnout of their early planted potatoes, many of them as large as a goose egg.

On the 1st inst. Aaron Schlosser took possession of the Arendtsville Hotel. Geo. Knipper who had conducted it during the last two years has returned to Ledgewood, N. J., his former home.

Jacob H. Wierman spent several days recently with relatives in York. Mrs. Mary Wright of Hunterstown was the guest of Mrs. Ella Yeatts in the home of H. P. Mark.

Mrs. Francis W. Orner has been quite ill during the last several days suffering with appendicitis.

Jacob Yohe who had a severe paralytic stroke last fall had improved considerably until last Sunday when he took quite ill and lost his speech and is not able to take scarcely any nourishment.

Ira Walter, wife and daughter Mabel, William White and Miss Ida Walter from Fairfield, visited at the home of Mrs. D. J. Thomas.

Across Continent on High Gear.

Pathfinder twin six, called the "King of Travelers," went through Gettysburg last Sunday on its transcontinental tour, following the Lincoln Way from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

On July 3 a stock car left San Diego, Cal., by way of the Lincoln Highway. It crossed the Sierras, mounted the Rockies, climbed the great Continental Divide, a 21 per cent. grade; skimmed the great plains and then darted through the Alleghenies on its way to New York, having traveled every mile on high gear without any mishap, mechanical adjustment or repairs whatever, establishing a new world's record for speed, endurance and economy.

The car reached Gettysburg on Sunday driven by two pilots who have already won world-wide distinction. Hennie Schoiler, who has previously made four trips across the continent, and Walter Weidley, another transcontinental pilot, who is winning new laurels on the trip.

On the start the transmission was sealed by the American Automobile Association and the Mayor of San Diego and was not broken.

The car was painted in the national colors, red, white and blue, and carried the Lincoln Highway emblem on its sides in token of its route. Aside from the fancy decoration, the car is claimed to be absolutely the same automobile that is delivered to the buyer—strictly stock, with the first and second gears left out.

AN EASY WAY TO REDUCE FLESH.

Drink Hot Water and Take Tassco.

Haven't you often wished for a medicine to reduce your flesh? Something that does not require dieting or calisthenics? Well, right here you have it in 5-grain tassco tablets which you may secure at People's Drug Store. They are pleasant to take, perfectly harmless and cause no restrictions of habit or eating, and reduce the flesh, little by little, until you are down to the number of pounds you wish to weigh. Too much flesh is undesirable, as most stout people will readily admit, and it detracts from one's good appearance; makes one clumsy and short of breath.

There isn't any reason why anyone should be too stout, when there's this much-tried, perfectly satisfactory remedy at People's Drug Store. Tassco tablets (don't forget the name) are recommended by physicians and are guaranteed to be perfectly harmless. Refuse substitutes, if you can not come to our store, we will mail Tassco to you.

HUGHES' ACCEPTANCE.

Since our last issue Hon. Charles E. Hughes was officially notified of his nomination for President by the Republicans and in a formal prepared speech the nomination was accepted. That the nominee was not equal to the occasion, and would be unsafe is reflected in the letter addressed by 37 prominent editors and writers for magazines and newspapers who were dissatisfied with the acceptance speech. This letter is signed by Samuel Hopkins Adams, Ray Stannard Baker, Irvin S. Cobb, George Creel, Oliver Herford, Lincoln Steffens and others and is as follows:

"To the Hon. Charles E. Hughes: The professional writers who sign this letter have small interest in parties, but a very deep interest in democracy. It is our hope, through this voluntary association, to assist in the promotion of honest, educational discussion in order that fundamental issues may not be decided in prejudices and ignorance.

"Mr. Wilson's beliefs have been expressed in the law and in declared policies. He has made an open record by which he may be judged. Wise choice is not possible unless you yourself make equally specific statement of purposes and convictions.

"Without intent to defend, we feel justified in charging that in no single public utterance have you filed a bona fide bill of particulars, nor have you offered a single constructive suggestion.

"Personalities are without value. Blanket criticism is worthless. What we desire to know, what it is fair that the electorate should know, are the exact details of your agreement with President Wilson. What has he done that you would not have done, and what has he failed to do that you would have done or will do? Honesty and patriotism demand that you put yourself upon record in such manner as to permit people to judge you as they are now able to judge President Wilson. For example:

"Would you have filed instant protest against the invasion of Belgium and backed up that protest with the United States navy?

"It is arrant nonsense to talk about action that would have prevented the Lusitania tragedy. The vague advertisement did not appear until shortly before the hour of sailing. The occurrence was one of those things that civilization has made the world regard as incredible. The only honest question to this: Would you have made the disaster the subject of diplomatic negotiations or would you have broken relations with Germany at once?

"Would you have urged upon congress an embargo upon the shipment of munitions to the allies?

"Would you urge universal compulsory military service?

"You are frank in stating that Huerta's morals were of no concern to America. Does this mean that you would have recognized Huerta?

"As matters stand to-day, would you be in favor of intervening in Mexico?

"Does your attack upon the Wilson shipping bill mean that you are in favor of ship subsidies?

"You speak enthusiastically of the rights of the worker. Does this imply that you indorse the Clayton anti-trust law and the seamen's bill? Or will you urge their repeal?

"What are your specific complaints against the federal reserve law?

"As governor of New York, you opposed the income tax amendment. Does this antagonism persist? Do you or do you not believe in paying for preparedness out of a tax on incomes, inheritances and munitions?

"We agree with you that it is a 'critical period,' by far too critical, indeed, for candidates to talk in terms of office-seeking rather than in the simple, earnest language of definite Americanism.

—Mrs. Edgar F. Smith, wife of Provost Smith of the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. John Gruel of Philadelphia, and their mother Mrs. John Gruel, Mrs. Shaub of Lancaster were Gettysburg visitors for several days this week. Mrs. Gruel and family lived on Chambersburg street in the property adjoining the Eagle Hotel.

WOODROW WILSON.

WHY PROGRESSIVES ARE FOR WILSON.

National Chairman Vance McCormick last week issued statement giving unanswerable reasons why all genuine Progressives should be for Wilson.

The Democratic party can reasonably put itself forward in the present national campaign as the one available instrumentality for progressive service. Its record of performance and its declared intentions justify a confident feeling that the great body of voters who identified themselves with the Progressive party in the hope of being enabled to promote a definite set of principles will now look to the Democratic party as the party of progress. When full appreciation is had of the extent to which the Democratic party has consummated the purposes set forth in that wonderfully human document adopted as the Progressive platform in 1912, when the Progressives actually realize how closely their purposes, declared in 1912, coincided with the purposes which have animated the Democratic party since that time both in the formulation of the Congressional enactments for which it is responsible and of its platform promises, men will cease to wonder at the evident intention of real progressives of every party to align themselves behind a single banner in this campaign.

Progressiveness Should Be Definite.

After all, being progressive means something fairly definite. The essence of the thing is a keen perception of the Government's duty in respect of the welfare of all its constituents, in seeing that human justice is meted out to all elements in the social fabric. What Progressive can fail to contemplate with deep satisfaction and gratitude the list of enactments in which the Congress under Democratic control and leadership has consummated Progressive platform declarations? In keeping with distinctive commitments of the Progressive platform, the following laws have been enacted in the six years since the Democratic party gained control of the House and the nearly four years of its control of the Senate.

(1). The Rural Credits act, which permits the farmer the same access to credit facilities that is enjoyed by the other elements of our citizenship.

(2). The Income Tax Law.

(3). The Federal Reserve act, which measures up to the Progressive requirement for "the issue of currency as a Governmental function under a system whose control should be lodged with the Government and should be protected from domination or manipulation by Wall street or by any special interest."

(4). The Good Roads law, which extends Federal aid to road building, thereby insuring the extension of the rural free delivery service.

Big Progressive Demand Met.

(5). The Trade Commission law, which fully satisfies the Progressive demand for a "strong Federal administrative commission of high standing that shall maintain permanent active supervision over industrial corporations engaged in interstate commerce."

(6). An eight-hour law applying to work done for the Government as well as work done by the Government.

(7). An eight-hour law applying to female employees in the District of Columbia, over which Congress has jurisdiction.

(8). An eight-hour provision for post office clerks and carriers.

(9). An eight-hour provision applicable to civilians engaged in the manufacture of ordnance and powder for the Government.

(10). An eight-hour provision as to the mining of all coal to be used by the navy.

(11). The Children's Bureau law to promote the welfare of children and to devise means preventive of the necessities of parents retarding development of the child.

(12). The Industrial Commission law to investigate the entire subject of industrial relations.

Federal Employment Bureau.

(13). The phosphorus match law to protect the health of workers in the match industry.

(14). The Anti-Trust act, embracing the regulation of the issuance of injunctions.

(15). The Department of Labor Law, creating a department with a secretary who shall be a member of the President's cabinet.

(16). The Smith-Lever Agricultural Education Law, which responds to the Progressive demand that measures be taken to lift "the last load of illiteracy from American youth" by "encouraging agricultural education and domestic schools."

(17). The Corrupt Election Practices Act.

(18). Measures abolishing the Commerce Court, and authorizing the Interstate Commerce Commission to make a physical valuation of railroads.

(19). The Sherwood Pension bill, which must meet the Progressive idea of a "wise and just policy of pensioning American soldiers and sailors and their widows and children."

(20). The Parcel Post law.

In addition, the Administration has met Progressive platform demands by establishing the Federal Employment Bureau, which has secured work for more than 32,659 laborers and secured over $7,000,000 in earnings for labor; by measures to extend foreign commerce through reorganization of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, the establishment of the Bureau of Foreign Trade Advisers in the State Department, and the fuller utilization of the consular and diplomatic service; by enforcing the principle of civil service in sharp contrast with the practices of "coercion and assessment of subordinate employees," for which the Progressive party condemned the Taft administration; by the investigation and effective suppression of lobbying. The creation of a Tariff Revision Commission is assured at this session of Congress, and the Administration is wholly committed to the Federal Child Labor bill and the Workmen's Compensation bill, specifically favored by the Progressive platform. The Progressive party pledged itself to "use its best endeavors to substitute judicial and other peaceful means of settling international affairs in lieu of the barbaric system of warfare among nations. The present Administration has endeavored to apply this principle.

Reforms Already Half Passed.

Measures embodying Progressive platform ideas which have passed one house of Congress include:

(1). The McGillicuddy bill for the prevention of industrial accidents.

(2). The conservation measures.

(3). The flood control bill.

(4). An inheritance tax provision in the omnibus revenue bill.

The St. Louis platform commits the Democratic party to measures embodying the following issues:

(1). "Minimum wage standard for working women, the prohibition of night work for women, the establishment of an eight-hour day for women and young persons, one day of rest in seven for all wage earners, an eight-hour day in continuous 24-hour industries," as was demanded by the Progressive platform of 1912.

(2). The abolition of the convict labor contract system, substituting the system of prison production for governmental consumption only, and the application of prisoners' earnings to the support of their families, as demanded by the Progressive platform of 1912.

(3). The just pensioning of American soldiers and sailors.

BOSTON WOMAN RECOMMENDING IT TO HER FRIENDS

Popular Boston Lady Says Tonaline Has Proven a Godsend to Her.

It is always interesting to listen to the statements of our friends, and especially when you know they are sincere and honest in what they say. Added interest is created in a statement coming from one who has spent a lifetime in Boston, where she is well known socially.

Such a person is Annie Stewart, who resides in Boston, and is possessed of the respect and confidence of her associates, and is willing for anyone to call on her to verify the following signed testimonial.

"I have suffered with stomach trouble for the past seven years. It took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. I had dizzy spells and headaches, and after I ate a little food it would ferment and cause gas to form in my stomach. I had pains all over my body, and was chronically constipated. My liver was torpid, and I felt generally miserable. I had doctored and had been in the hospital, but received no permanent relief. I was so nervous and restless that at night I could scarcely sleep. The gas pressing under my heart caused palpitation, and when I arose in the morning I was just as tired as when I retired. About two weeks ago I began to take tonoline, and I can truthfully state that it has done wonders in my case. I am feeling like a new woman and can eat any kind of food. I sleep the night through and have no more aches or pains; in fact has cured me, and I am recommending it to all of my friends, as it has been a Godsend to me."

People's Drug Store sell and guarantee tonoline.

There are numerous symptoms of this trouble that tonoline can relieve. In fact, any of the following may denote affections of the stomach: Indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick throbbing headache, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, costiveness, coated tongue or a poor complexion.

Caution:—As tonoline is recommended as a flesh builder those not wishing to increase their weight 15 pounds or more should not take it continuously.

DELUDES ITS ENEMIES.

Cunning of the Castor Oil Plant in Protecting Its Seeds.

Dressing them up to look like "foul tasting bugs," this plant protects her children from hungry birds. If it were not for their disguises the children might be eaten and never have a chance to grow and become big plants. The wise mother plant realizes this, hence the masquerade. It's the castor oil plant.

To the average person anything relating to castor oil is not regarded as much of a delicacy. Birds, however, think otherwise. The seeds of the plant are like candy to them.

So the mother plant schemes to protect them. When she sees them out into the world she clothes them in variegated and fantastic dress until the seeds resemble coccinella beetles.

Now, if there is anything birds dislike more than anything else it is a coccinella beetle. As a result they make a wry face when they see the castor oil beans and pass them by.

These seeds are oval and about a half inch long. They grow in spiny capsules, three seeds in each capsule. To show that the castor oil plant is no newcomer on the earth, archaeologists write of finding seeds in tombs of ancient Egyptians.—Philadelphia North American

FIRE BAGS AT SEA.

The Kind They Used in the Day of the Old Tinder Box.

Every whaler and sealer that sailed the seas in the days of wooden ships carried a fire bag. This was a tarpaulin bag about a foot long and six inches wide lined with waterproof material, with interlinings of oilcloth and thick flannel. Into this was placed the flint and tinder box for kindling fire, and the bag was then securely fastened with double flaps and tied to keep its contents dry.

It was the special duty of the second mate to look after the fire bag and in case of shipwreck to attach it at once to his person by means of stout straps provided for the purpose. Thus if officers and crew were cast away on some deserted shore in the desolate arctic circle the means of obtaining a fire to warm themselves by and to heat food and drink would not be wanting as long as the precious fire bag was safe.

The steam whalers and sealers of the present day still carry a fire bag stowed in the lifeboat with the bread and water, but now it is of rubber and contains half a dozen tin boxes of matches.—New York Press.

Double Eyed Fish.

There is a fish equipped with bifocal eyes, one-half of the lens for seeing above the surface of the water and the other for submarine use. This characteristic also gives the fish its popular name—double eyes.

The fish inhabits the shores of South America. Sometimes they swim with the eyes half out of water. Examination shows that each lens is divided into two parts by a dark band. The half above the band is out of water and the other half below the surface.

Naturalists tell us that the fish's eyes became "double" from its practice in swimming with them half submerged.

Nature made the part of the eye above water adapted for seeing in the air, while the other part remained adapted for vision under water.

The double eyes grow to about a foot in length and in Brazil are caught for food.—Philadelphia North American.

His Remarkable Career.

Few careers have covered wider extremes of fortune than did that of John of Cappadocia. He was a Roman officer of very high rank under the Emperor Justinian in the sixth century. He was a very able man, and under his direction the finances of the government flourished wonderfully. Incidentally he amassed a great fortune for himself. But he was very corrupt, and the revenues were raised "on the deaths of thousands, the poverty of millions, the ruins of cities and the desolation of provinces." He lived most extravagantly and indulged in all sorts of wicked practices. But his life of ostentatious prodigality was suddenly changed into one of abject poverty. Though guilty of many crimes, he was accused of one of which he seems to have been innocent and was condemned to be scourged like the lowest of criminals. Nothing of his vast fortune was left him but one old ragged cloak, and it is said that for seven years he begged bread in the streets of cities that once had trembled at his name.

A Peasant Boy Philosopher.

Very remarkable was the boyhood of the celebrated James Ferguson, who was born at Keith, in Banffshire, Scotland, in 1710. His father, who was a day laborer, taught him to read and write and sent him to school for three months at Keith. At the age of eight he constructed a clock of wood that kept remarkably good time and afterward made a wooden watch with a whalebone spring. He began to earn his first money by cleaning and mending clocks in the neighborhood. His astronomical pursuits commenced soon afterward, his father having sent him to a neighboring farmer, who employed him in watching his sheep. While thus occupied he amused himself at night by watching the stars and during the day in making models. In 1747 he published his book on the phenomena of the harvest moon, and this was followed by other astronomical works. His books received the approval of the Royal society, before which he frequently appeared.

How Boston Might Be Destroyed.

One of the most novel methods yet conceived of destroying a city is described in Popular Science Monthly. The author says:

"An enemy need not bother mustering battleships or waste his time bombarding from afar the intellectual hub of this land of ours. In time of peace let him have his spies build a big pumping station right in the middle of that city, and at the proper time start drawing indiscriminately from the ground below the water saturating the subsoil. You know a large number of Boston's big buildings rest upon floating foundations. Pump out the water in the supporting quicksand and down those structures would tumble into the yawning cavities so created. It would be far more effective in its demolition than the projectiles of a hostile fleet."

Won by a Bluff.

When the armies of Napoleon were overrunning Europe, General Massena, with 18,000 men, suddenly appeared before the Austrian town of Feldkirch and demanded its surrender. Instead of complying, the burgo-master issued orders that the church bells were to be set ringing and that the burghers, their wives and daughters, clad in holiday attire, were to assemble in the market square and there make merry.

The result was exactly what he had hoped for. Massena heard the sound of rejoicing, watched from the heights overlooking the town the gathering throngs in the streets and came to the conclusion that the townsfolk must have received intelligence that the Austrian army, which was believed to be somewhere in the vicinity, was advancing to their relief.

As to give battle there and then formed no part of Napoleon's general plan of action, Massena ordered a retreat. Feldkirch was saved, and by a bluff, for as a matter of fact no relieving force was anywhere near at the time.

Coming and Going.

One afternoon a cast down hobo timidly knocked on the door of a suburban home, and when the owner of the house appeared he meekly asked for bread.

"I see," responded the proprietor, critically sizing up the tramp, "that the knees of your trousers are badly worn."

"Yes, sir," answered the hobo, in a subdued voice. "I wore them through kneeling in prayer."

A few minutes later the tramp was handed his fodder, and with many thanks he turned and started toward the gate.

"Just a moment," exclaimed the proprietor. "I notice that your trousers are also pretty badly worn in the back."

"Yes, sir," responded the tramp, steering for the gate. "I did that back-sliding."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Giant and Dwarf Honeybees.

In some of the East Indian islands and on the mainland of Hindustan are to be found the smallest species of honeybees in the world. These dwarf honey collectors are known to entomologists as Apis florea. Their honeycombs are no larger than a child's hand, and the cells are about the size of a small pinhead. This honey is excellent, as is the wax. The little creatures build the comb in the branch of a low tree, and as they have not to provide for winter, they work all the year through, raising broods like themselves.

In the same land there is a species of giant bees, Apis dorsata, as large as a field cricket. These monsters of the bee world build honeycombs that are from six to seven feet in length, four or more in width and weigh from 300 to 400 pounds each.

Blotted Out "Lord Penn."

The first book of any kind published in Philadelphia was Atkin's Almanack for the year 1688. It was an unpagged pamphlet of ten leaves, only two copies of which are now known to be in existence. The first copy of the almanack printed was sent to Colonel Markham, Penn's deputy, who reported to the council that the book had erroneously declared Pennsylvania to have been founded by "Lord Penn." The council disapproved such a high sounding title and directed the author and printer (William Bradford) to "forthwith and effectually blot out ye words 'Lord Penn.'" This had the effect of recalling the whole edition and the abolition of the obnoxious words.

THE PARTS THEY PLAYED

Story of an American in the War in Belgium

By ALAN HINSDALE

Albert Clarke, an American boy, when the great European war broke out, having a desire to take part in it, went to Canada, where he enlisted in a regiment of infantry and in due time was sent to Belgium. In a fight he was taken prisoner, and while being marched to the rear with a number of his comrades, his guard being inattentive, he managed to slip away. Just as he was passing out of sight of his captors he was seen, and they gave chase.

Clarke ran into a yard in the center of which stood a house. The first thing in his path that afforded a hiding place was a well. It struck him that no one would think of looking for a man in the bottom of a well. The arrangement for drawing water was a long pole, the bucket being at one end and a huge stone at the other. This enabled him to descend with less rapidity than if not partly counterbalanced by the stone, though he went down much faster than he would have chosen.

The other end of the balance pole being up in the air was a dead give away, so he emptied the bucket, let go his hold and it went up as fast as it had come down.

Clarke's pursuers, fortunately for him, did not reach sight of the well house till a few moments after the bucket had gone up. As he had hoped, they did not stop to look into the well, but continued on their way. But it soon occurred to Bert that if he had not jumped from the frying pan into the fire he had at least jumped from a German prison into cold water. Although the season was in the early summer the bath was by no means rapid.

All he could do was to get one foot on a stone on one side of the well and the other foot on the other side, stand there above the surface and wait for some one to come to the well for water. His life depended upon some one coming within a reasonable time, for if the arrival were put off too long he would either starve or be chilled to death. Looking up, he examined the circle of stone forming the well and saw that the surface was too smooth for him to climb. It was only at the lower part that the stones afforded a foothold.

Bert had been captured in the morning and escaped about noon. He had stood in his rying position for six hours when he was gladdened by the sound of a bucket striking the ground. In another moment the well bucket was lowered and filled. Bert would have climbed the rod connecting it with the balance pole, but his strength had gone out of him. So when the bucket came to the surface of the water he emptied it and held on to it for an ascent, doing what he could to lighten it by clenching here and there the circling wall.

When he reached the well house there was a shriek, and down he went again to the bottom. A girl, instead of drawing up a bucket of water, had drawn up a man, and the discovery was a great shock to her. She ran away from the well house, but presently, curiosity getting the better of her fright, she turned and looked back. There was the well, the bucket hanging over it and silence.

It occurred to her that the man had returned to the bottom, and a man at the bottom of a well was not necessarily an object of terror. Then she realized the man's position. Lastly, she went back to the well house and, without daring to look over, called out: "Who's there?"

Bert knew a little French and replied: "Anglais solitaire" (English soldier).

The girl helped matters amazingly. The girl was a Belgian and knew that the English were fighting for her country. Bert asked her in a mixture of French and English to lower the bucket and help him out. She did not understand him, but common sense suggested that this he done and done quickly. Down went the bucket again, Bert took hold of it and with difficulty was raised to the surface. Once there he took the precaution to catch hold of a support so that he would not go down a third time.

He was a pitiable spectacle, drenched and chilled as he was; indeed, just the object to excite the sympathy of a woman. She helped him out of the well house, and after she had assured him by French, English and pantomime that there were no German soldiers very near, he started with her to the house as fast as he was able. Just some enemy might see him, for there was the boom of cannon all about him.

At the house was a woman—the girl's mother—and several children. The men of the household were all fighting for Belgium. After a few words of explanation the girl went to a cupboard and brought out a bottle. It was only wine, but Bert made up for its want of strength by drinking it all. Then the girl brought out some bread and cheese—there was no meat in Belgium—and the soldier consumed it ravenously. Meanwhile the mother lighted a fire on the hearth, and by its warmth his clothes were dried, though later other clothes that belonged to the men of the family were provided for him.

Bert did not feel very secure, for he was within the German lines and Germans were liable to come to the house at any moment. He was taken to the garret, where a mattress was placed on the floor behind a pile of discarded furniture, and on this bed he spent the night. In the morning he was at a loss to know whether to put on his khaki uniform or the citizen's clothes that had been provided for him. If he wore his uniform he would be recognized for a soldier; if he wore the citizen's clothes, though he might the better escape attention, if known to be an enemy he would be shot for a spy. He concluded to take the latter risk, and if confronted by enemies under take to pass himself off for a member of the family that harbored him.

Several days passed without any Germans entering the house or Bert's seeing any chance whatever to go back to the British lines. During those few days he learned more French than he had ever learned before, though he had studied it in school. The girl who had rescued him—Jeanne was her name—she found very attractive. She resembled a Dutch girl, having light hair and complexion, with a rose in each cheek.

One day some German soldiers, stragglers, came to the house and demanded something to eat. But Jeanne saw them coming, and Bert escaped to the garret.

He finally got into trouble through politeness. Water was needed, and since Jeanne was not on hand to get it Bert insisted on going to the well for it. While drawing the water several German officers entered the grounds. It was too late to take to flight, and Bert decided to stand his ground. The officers approached him and one of them asked for a drink of water. Bert accommodated him, trying the while to fix his own mind on something else than the frightful danger he was running, in order that he might preserve his equanimity.

One of the Germans spoke French and asked him what so lusty a fellow was doing at home when there was war in the land. Bert replied that he was the only man on the premises and had just married a young wife, who would not let him go. He gave, this reason knowing that all the world sympathizes with a young married couple.

"Perhaps something of the wedding feast is left," said the officer, "and we may be favored with a bite."

"There can be no wedding feasts in this country," now," replied Bert, "but such as we have we will give you."

He led the way to the house. Jeanne had reappeared, and she and her mother, seeing what had happened, pulled themselves together for any part they might be expected to play.

"Ach," said one officer to another in German on seeing Jeanne, "one can't blame the fellow for staying at home with such a pretty bride as that."

The German and French languages are both spoken in Belgium, and Jeanne understood perfectly what he said, and since he looked from Bert to her she knew that he referred to them. She blushed, which under the circumstances was the most natural thing for her to do. Besides, she inferred that she was to play the part of Bert's bride. She brought out the best there was in the larder—it was not much—and there was plenty of wine in the cellar.

The officers had evidently been on short rations, for they ate all that was set before them and drank one bottle of wine after another till they were quite mellow. Then Jeanne said to them:

"Herr officers, I have a request to make of you."

"What is that, pretty one?"

"I was obliged to be married with out a trousseau. That is a terrible thing for a bride. Will you give me a pass to go to Paris to buy one?"

"Certainly you shall have a pass."

"One thing more I have to ask—that my husband be permitted to go with me."

"Ach! That is a different matter."

"Do you think a bride just married would consent to leave her husband? If he cannot go with me I will not go at all."

The officers discussed the matter between them, Jeanne persisting in her request till finally one of the officers, who seemed to have the highest rank and had drunk the most wine declared that so pretty a bride who had entertained them so well should have any boon she asked, and, calling for pen and paper, he wrote a pass for the two to go through the lines. Then, demanding a kiss of the bride, which was granted, he led the rest away.

Bert and Jeanne were left alone together. Bert stood looking at her with an expression of gratitude mingled with admiration. She had been playing the part of his wife and by so doing had prevented his being shot for a spy.

"My life is yours," said Bert. "Do with it as you will."

She dropped her eyes to the ground. Bert took her hand in his, and the two stood mute, she with averted face. Presently he said:

"I am a soldier, and if I succeed in reaching the British lines I must serve out my term of enlistment. When that ends, if I still live and I can get back here, I will come to you. My home is in that far country America, which you have heard about, and it has been so protected by oceans that there has been little or no war there. If I return there and you will go with me I will take you. In that case we will make a reality of what has been a pretense."

The response to this was more effective than if it had been spoken in words. Jeanne turned toward him, and her head sank on his breast.

Circular Boats.

Still used to a considerable extent, circular boats in the Tigris may be seen at Bagdad, just as they appeared 2,000 years ago, when Herodotus wrote: "The boats which come down the river to Babylon are circular and made of skins. The frames, which are of willow, are cut in the country of the Armenians above Assyria, and on these, which serve for hulls, a covering of skins is stretched outside, and thus the boats are made, without either stem or stern, quite round, like a shield. They are then entirely filled with straw, and their cargo is put on board, after which they are suffered to float down the stream. Their chief freight is wine, stored in casks made of the wood of the palm tree. They are managed by two men, who stand upright in them, each plying an oar, one pulling and the other pushing. The boats are of various sizes, some larger, some smaller. The biggest reach as high as 5,000 talents' burthen. Each vessel has a live ass on board. Those of larger size have more than one."

Apple Peddlers of New York City.

On the east side of New York city on Ludlow street, south of Grand, is the wholesale market of the apple peddlers. Here there is an animated scene—men wildly shouting and gesticulating, sidewalks crowded with forests of apple barrels. It is almost impossible to pass along even in the street for the dozens of peddlers' carts lined up there. Suddenly there is a commotion, and a crowd gathers at the curb. A barrel of apples is on sale, bids rise at a penny a bid, and finally the highest bidder carries off his prize. Everywhere are barrels overflowing with cheerful red and yellow apples which the peddlers will carry off to peddle in other parts of the city. The wholesale apple dealers rent basements along this street in which to store their wares. In the morning they bring out and strew the barrels all over the narrow, dark stretch of Ludlow street.

Divorces Are Costly in Canada.

Canada's divorce court is never entered except by members of the wealthy class, and not frequently by them. Only four to six divorces are granted in Canada annually.

There is no record of a poor man ever getting a divorce in the Dominion. It is said. The average cost of a divorce in Canada is $2,000, and the decree is granted for only one offense—marital infidelity.

The legislature at Ottawa appoints a divorce committee each session, and all cases are settled by this committee. There is no appeal in a divorce action. Those living in the western part of the Dominion have to pay much more for a decree than those living in the east because of the heavier traveling expenses.—Detroit Tribune.

Dropped In on the Bears.

Some years back a visitor dropped in on the bears at the zoological gardens. A hat fell into the pit, and its owner at once jumped in after it. He alighted on a bear who was enjoying a doze in the sun. The bear made him welcome. It seized him by the shoulders and waltzed him round and round. Luckily the visitor kept his feet until a keeper opened a side door and pulled him into safety. But the hat was left behind. On the following day the man sent to the society a letter in which he claimed the cost of a new hat.—London Tatler.

He Had Some Conceit.

"How did you come out?" asked his friend. "Will she have you?"

"Her answer," replied the diplomatic attaché, "is partially satisfactory, enough so to continue negotiations. She says if she ever does marry it will be a man of good looks, courage and ability."—Judge.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Keep the Teeth Clean.

That the far-reaching consequences of neglecting to take care of the teeth may be felt in later life is the belief of many medical observers. Many diseases are the direct result of decayed teeth, swollen and inflamed gums, pyorrhea or some other form of oral sepsis.

Attention must be given to the teeth regularly, three times a day, as soon as possible after eating, if the teeth are to be preserved and the health kept normal. An equal portion of prepared chalk andorris root, mixed and clean if used as a tooth powder. The gums may be toned up by rinsing the mouth with salt water. A half teaspoonful to a tumbler of water makes an agreeable solution. Salt water in this strength is also an excellent gargle for a sore throat.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
